JBI Statewide – finally one subscription and one access point.

The individual network JBI subscriptions have been consolidated into one JBI subscription, making access far easier and providing an option for a Statewide JBI tools account, including practice manuals. Please see the SALUS site for more information or see a demo here.

PubMed devotees: We now have links to SALUS fulltext Journals from PubMed.

To get to SALUS held fulltext articles on PubMed, you will need to use the link on the SALUS home page: PubMed with Linkout to SALUS for Fulltext. This link activates our holdings connections but you MUST be in an abstract view to see the SALUS link button. The SALUS button will appear on all citations but will only return access to fulltext when we have a valid subscription to that journal.

Nursing and Allied Health staff – this one is for you! Newly added: Emcare

We are adding Emcare: a nursing and allied health database ideal for practice, research, or education to our suite of SALUS databases. Please have a look and let us know what you think via this feedback form.

- Access to nearly 5 million records
- Over 3,700 international journals indexed and with no embargoes
- Access to over 1,800 journals not available on other leading nursing databases
- Nearly 5 million records dating back to 1995
- Up to 250,000 record citations added each year
- Comprehensive scope of international content: 50% of journals from North America, 40% from Europe; 10% from other regions
- 70% of records contain online abstracts

Staff Focus for March
Jana Herber, Electronic Resources Librarian, SA Health Library Service.

Hi everyone. My name is Jana Herber and I’m the new Electronic Resources Librarian.

I started working at the RAH library in October 2016. Before coming to SA Health I was working in a natural health library. I have a master’s in Library and Information Management and a BA in English.

I enjoy helping people learn to use new technologies. Despite using technology throughout my life, I still prefer to read physical books and I love quality stationery.

If you see me with headphones on, I’m usually listening to a podcast about science, history, psychology, literature or random facts.
Have you got an ORCID – no idea what this is… read on if you ever have, or plan to publish a paper.

An ORCID provides a persistent digital identifier that distinguishes you from every other researcher, and provides linkages between you and your professional activities to ensure your work is recognized.

- Distinguishes you and your research from other researchers with similar names.
- Connects your various name formats e.g. Ashley Smith; Ashley H. Smith; Ashley Hudson Smith; A. H. Smith
- Connects all previous affiliations or workplaces and your research
- The National Institutes of Health and the NHMRC support the use of ORCID iDs by grant applicants. Journals such as Nature publish the ORCIDs of their authors, and publishers such as Elsevier, Wiley, PLOS, Taylor and Francis, Springer, and Wolters Kluwer collect ORCIDs for their authors.
- Register for an ORCID

Library Services and Staff on the move:

Over Christmas we bid farewell to Lindsay Harris, retiring from the TQEH library after 21 years of service, and over 30 years’ experience in libraries, both in Adelaide and interstate and predominantly in health libraries. Lindsay’s judgement and experience was respected by his immediate colleagues as well as colleagues at the national and international level. Lindsay’s contribution to the library profession via ALIA and the HLA has been substantial and his professional standing was recognised some years ago by the Chartered Institute of Library and Information Professionals (CILIP) of the UK, which awarded him Fellowship of that body. We will miss his presence in the SA Health Library Service and wish him all the best in his retirement.

TQEH Library on the move. In mid 2017, The Queen Elizabeth Hospital Library will depart from the ground floor and move to the 5th floor of the main building. All library services currently remain the same, however there are now no print books on site. Books can be requested for loan via your SALUS library catalogue and delivered to TQEH for your convenience. Please contact TQEH library staff for more details.

RAH Library move to the new RAH – watch this space. Currently expected to occur in the second quarter of 2017.

Topic Guides on SALUS

Each guide has been developed to support SA Health staff working in the specialist areas and provides links to the latest resources available in the library. There are 3 new subject guides on SALUS and more are planned for 2017.

* Obstetrics and Gynaecology
* Paediatrics
* History of SA Hospitals
